“ I know no one will see this, idk just reminiscing at the moment. Well, hi grandma. It's Abby. I haven't seen you since before my first communion. Ik it's been over 10 years since you passed, however I can't help but think of you from time to time. I still remember coming to see you when I was really young. I just never thought that would be the last time I see you. Tonight I was talking to my dad, your son, about you and asking him questions about his younger years. Well, we just found out a year later that aunt Sarah passed too. Dad is devastated. I really wish I could've had a connection with you and her but the opportunity never came around. I was too young to reach out and part of me wishes I found a way to anyway. I mean I've grown since then. There's so much I wanna tell you. I'm 24 now, in college again to become a crime investigator. You have two other grandchildren. Amelia, she's 20 and in college. The most pure soul you could ever meet. Shes studying aerospace engineering and I know she's going to do great things in life. I mean she's sooo smart, beyond smart if you ask me. Your grandson Adam is now 14. Tomorrow is his last day of 8th grade. He's a goofball, he's for sure someone who could take any bad situation and find something positive. He takes a lot after dad if I'm gonna be honest. Also, I have so many pictures and videos and memories I wish I could share with you and auntie. I know you both are watching over us from heaven and I hope we can make you proud. I love you both.

“ Sara,
Just saw in the Lakeland Times about the passing of your Mom. I am so sorry to hear but as you know she is in a much better place. She is a very special lady so she will have a very special place in heaven.
You meet people through your life and some just make an impression on your heart your Mom was one of those people. I will keep you in my prayers.
