Thank you Ms. Barb. You and Daddy and the Chocolates. Lol. Daddy made sure to send us to see you with Chocolate for Valentine's Day. The two of you and the "Chocolate". Now Daddy can eat a ton of it with all of his friends in heaven and both my grandfathers.

“ My condolences and prayers to Carla, Jon's family and friends. People move, lives interfere and we lose touch, however, memories keep you in our hearts and minds

In 1977 I was sick and in the process of moving from Alexandria to Indian Head. My new place needed painting and Jon and Ralph volunteered for the job. I was surprised by the 'new' spotted black linoleum in the kitchen area. Turns out it was a 'gift' from my 2 friends who may, or may not, have imbibed a beverage or two while working.

A picture taken at a ceremony at Stump Neck and all the Chiefs, except 1, with gold stripes on their sleeves. Not that Jon never got gold stripes, they just didn't always stick around.

Jon and Ralph were supposed to come to dinner one night. I left the Sportsman, went home, cooked, ate, put everything away and went to sleep. Eventually the Sportsman sent them on their way and they showed up looking for food. They were shown the refrigerator, they ate and were shown my downstairs housemate's bed. Fortunately Barney was not home at the time because they were not in any shape to drive.
